‘After We Fell’ Cinematography

The cinematography is also stunning, with beautiful sequences in London and shooting in Bulgaria, where they shot part of the film. The scenery and beautiful landscapes added to the picturesque style of the film and Castille London ensured that this was emphasized by maintaining a clear tone throughout the film.

As for the plot, the focus on Hardin and Tessa’s education added a sense of realism that was previously lacking. Seeing how they interacted with each other about college and their studies and future made it not only more believable, but also more applicable to our whole lives.

The movie ended just as emotionally as it started, leaving us begging for more from Tessa and Hardin, while also remaining sad that the series is slowly coming to an end. Maybe ‘After We Fell’ wasn’t perfect, but it gave us the love story we wanted, and watching Tess and Hardin grow and love each other remains the best and strongest motivator for these films.
